

Stephen Lloyd-Morgan

Voice of the Valleys

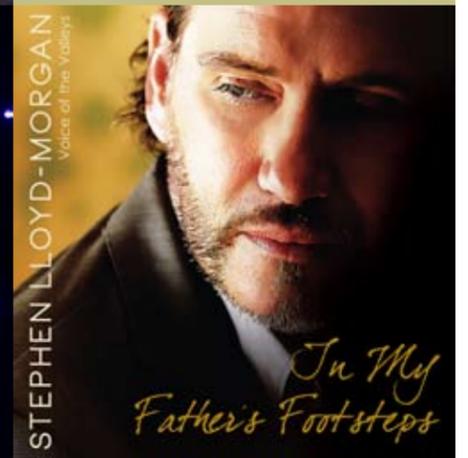

career in musicals at London's West End and the mastering of complex classical styles.

He has been enchanting crowds in the United Kingdom and on the Costa del Sol – where he performs at open-air concerts at the famous Puente Romano, at grand galas and at private events – with his golden voice and warmth of personality.

Stephen is a born singer and a natural entertainer for whom his art is a passion that spills over onto the audience. For all this ability to create an intimacy and rapport with them he remains a hardworking and down to earth man with a truly professional approach. In this he also manages to find time to give to worthy causes, and has recently recorded an album, In My Father's Footsteps, in support of cancer charities Cudeca (Spain) and Tenovus (Wales).

Born into a region with a rich vocal tradition, Stephen Lloyd Morgan has both the Rhondda Valley and singing in his blood – and his heart. Besides being gifted with a natural talent, it is also Stephen's passion for music that shines through in performances that have the energy of the West End, the soulfulness of the Valleys and the skill and technique of light classical music.

Not surprisingly, this versatile artist shines in all these genres, having progressed through the working men's clubs of his youth to a
